Summary of the Activity:

Left-Handers Day was celebrated by Cultural committee of H. K.College of Pharmacy on August 13, 2024, with the aim of recognizing and honoring the unique experiences and talents of left-handed individuals. To mark this occasion, a Handwriting and Quote Writing Competition was organized, encouraging participants to showcase their creativity and penmanship, with a special focus on left-handers.

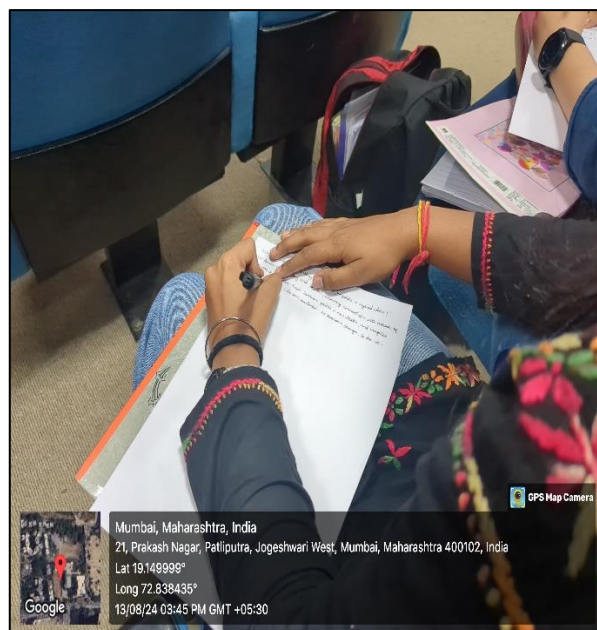

The celebration kicked off with an introduction to Left-Handers Day, explaining its significance and the importance of recognizing the experiences of left-handed people in a predominantly right-handed world. The students and staff were excited to participate in the events planned for the day.

In view of International Left Handers Day, Handwriting and Quote writing competition was organized for Left Handers students and staff. Participants were given a text to write in their best handwriting within a specified time limit. Special attention was given to participants, who were encouraged to embrace their unique style. The judges evaluated the entries based on legibility, consistency, and overall presentation.

In the Quote Writing Competition, participants were asked to compose original quotes or write famous quotes that resonated with the theme of celebrating uniqueness, diversity, or creativity. Participants were encouraged to be expressive and thoughtful in their entries, with a special category for quotes that reflected the experiences or perspectives of left-handed individuals. The event saw enthusiastic participation from students and staff alike. The left-handed participants appreciated the opportunity to be recognized and celebrated. The creativity and effort put into both competitions were commendable, with many unique and inspiring entries submitted.

Aditya Prajapati, a student from Final year B.Pharma was declared as the winner for Handwriting and Quote writing competition.
